Alumni Meetings Well Attended

BY CLAY E. MARSH, DIRECTOR OF ALUMNI AFFAIRS

Among those attending the St. Louis 'Valley Rally' were Reverend Ralph Kipp, trustee; Harold C. Brown '35, president, St. Louis Area Alumni Association; Dr. William E. Legan, president, board of trustees; George Lantz, trustee; and Dr. W. L. Tompkins, president, MVC.

Two chapters of the Missouri Valley Alumni Association have had successful meetings during the winter months.

About 85 were in attendance at the annual Kansas City Harvest Dinner held December 7 with out-going president Joel Ecton making the arrangements. Dr. George F. Brock highlighted the evening by giving a most appropriate tribute to our former Alumni Director and friend, R. Wilson Brown. The new officers elected at the meeting are: John Thornton '60, president; John Lamkin '41, vice president; and Jane Stone '58, treasurer.

The St. Louis annual "Valley Rally" was held in Kirkwood on January 12, with a large turnout of alumni and former students despite freezing rain and ice. Also present at the meeting were members of the admissions staff and current students who had a chance to meet informally with prospective students and their parents. Mr. Harold Brown, president of the St. Louis alumni chapter was master of ceremonies.

Dr. Tompkins was present at both meetings to bring news of the college and was accompanied by several other Valley staff and faculty members.

These meetings were especially meaningful in the respect that there is a great deal which our alumni and friends are doing for Valley aside from monetary contributions. Valley is fortunate her alumni are actively involved in bringing the college to the attention of high school graduates and other prospective students.

Chapters in other parts of the country are in the process of arranging meetings for spring and summer and we will keep our alumni informed as to their time, date, and place.

Valley Students In Who's Who

The dean's Office has announced that 18 seniors have been selected to appear in the 1970-1971 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities."

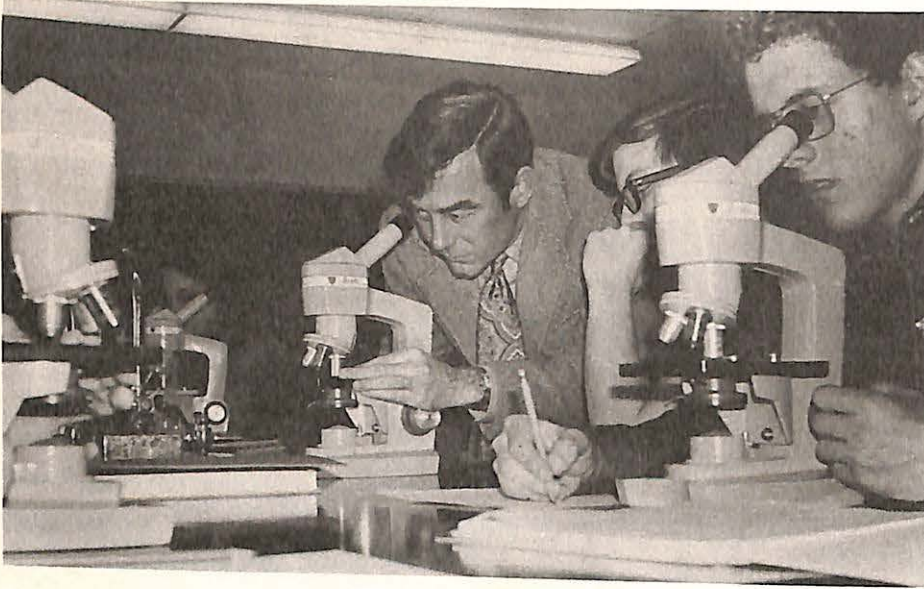

In making the announcement, Dr. Douglas Spencer, academic dean, cited excellence in scholarship, participation in extracurricular activities, campus leadership, community involvement and future potential as the primary criteria used in making the selections. The selection committee was made up of a group of students, faculty and administration members.

"Who's Who" was first published in 1934 and since then has recognized yearly the outstanding students at colleges and universities across the country.

Saving Our Environment — A Matter of Survival

By Reed Kepner

(Editor's note: Reed Kepner is an associate professor and chairman of the Biology Department at Missouri Valley. The following remarks are taken from speeches he has given on our environment during recent months.)

In the past few years it would have been impossible for anyone in this country to have escaped ecology. The rapid deterioration of our fresh water supplies, soil, air, and oceans has brought us to a condition where changes must inevitably take place if man is to survive at all.

The various elements and compounds found on the earth are in limited quantities and in many cases it is not the absolute amount of materials that makes the difference, but rather their particular arrangement as far as the earth's surface is concerned. The only outside source of material that we have is our energy supply from the sun.

As human populations have grown the strain placed on the supplies of earth's raw materials has tremendously increased. It's not enough that our population now requires larger amounts of food material to be produced, but the fact that we have been producing quantities of food on the same land surface for long periods of time has led to the loss of nutrients in the soil, many of which have taken millions of years to accumulate. Artificial replacement may allow larger amounts of food material to be grown but the quality of that food material will be considerably less.

The industrialization process, with its production of toxic materials being returned to the environment, is upsetting vast parts of the earth's surface. Concentrations of such materials in the ocean have reached proportions that may eventually prevent the survival of any type of living organism.

The earth's atmosphere which at one time was thought to be a dynamic enough physical system that could never be altered by man, now contains large quantities of waste materials. Oxides of nitrogen, sulfur and even dust particles may alter the energy supply reaching the earth's surface from the sun to such a degree that the photosynthetic process, the main rejuvenation process of the atmosphere, may be impaired.

As our population increases on a world-wide basis the demands and requirements on the environment also increase. A child born in the U. S. will place 50 times the demand on the environment during his lifetime as the child born in India. Although we represent less than 6% of the world population we use more than 50% of the world's natural resources. But as a population we have been unwilling to accept the responsibilities of stewardship as far as conservation of our natural resources and environment is concerned.

It will be necessary to control the rate at which we remove from the environment these critical materials needed for the survival of living organisms, including ourselves. We must as well develop methods of recycling materials. Without being over-dramatic and without a great deal of exaggeration, it is safe to say that from this point on our personal lives will be undergoing constant and far-reaching changes—changes that must be made if we are to survive as a country, as a world and as an individual species of organism.

It has been estimated by economists and biologists that the cost of rehabilitation of the earth's environment may reach well over $100 billion simply to offset the damage that has been done to our land, water and air. That, of course, is merely a start in solving our environmental crisis. We must also overhaul our life's style or look deeper into the twilight world of air that chokes, water that stinks, deafening noises that hurt, dying forests, dead fish and possibly even dead human beings. The changes—economic, political, social, and moral—that are forcing their way into our lives will dwarf anything we have experienced. Limitations of family size, travel restrictions, water and land use, legislation, food processing and packaging controls, all will be drastically affected in what we might consider a fight for quality in our lives.

Many people have said that the whole concept of problems associated with ecology and environment are merely political or social red herrings to take our minds off the other great problems faced with our society, nation and world; but one must keep in mind that of the problems that do face us, all are going to be over-shadowed or are not even going to exist if man himself fails to survive.

The President Speaks

DR. W. L. TOMPKINS

In these challenging days as man has rushed to be saved by technology and now to be saved from it, I believe there is emerging a new awareness of private liberal arts colleges like Missouri Valley. Certainly in Missouri this new awareness is heightened by the publication of the recent "Tucker Report" of the Governor's Task Force on the Role of Private Higher Education in Missouri.

The Governor's Task Force concluded that Missouri's private colleges and universities are a very major and very real asset to the state, and that the weakening or demise of these institutions would be a great loss to Missouri citizens. The Tucker Report says that for the 1970-71 academic year, vacancies in Missouri's private colleges and universities totaled 8,667 undergraduates and 1,038 graduate students. In speaking to the solutions other states have found to their higher education problems, the Report states that essentially these solutions can be classified as either direct aid to institutions or, support for individual students; support for individual students is the more extensively utilized of the two. The Report says that where need is a factor in student assistance programs, "it is usually based upon the concept of opening up the choice of educational programs to a student by removing financial barriers to that choice. In other words, it is believed that the wide diversity of programs available to a student should not be cut out of his future by dollar considerations."

Based on the above findings, the Task Force recommended that a student assistance program be established in Missouri for students attending private or public institutions. The Task Force also recommended that contractual arrangements be initiated between the State and private institutions, and between private and public institutions. "Considerable savings will be available to the State," the Report says, "if students in specialized fields can by contract arrangement with the State, pursue their course of study in private institutions rather than have the State build new facilities and hire new faculties." The Tucker Report also includes recommendations for restructuring the Missouri Commission on Higher Education; conducting a study to determine what share of higher education expenses should be borne by students versus taxpayers; and amending the Missouri Constitution so as to provide an exception to Section 38 (a) for aid grants in cases of need to students wishing to attend public or private colleges and universities in the state of Missouri.

Although it remains to be seen what legislation will be proposed in the 76th General Assembly of Missouri which convened in January, 1971, it is clear that the Governor's Task Force recommendations will be a much discussed state issue in Missouri. The ICUM (Independent Colleges and Universities of Missouri) of which Missouri Valley is a member is organizing a grass roots educational and information program in each of the state's 34 senatorial districts. Each district will have a committee around which the educational effort will be promoted. I am pleased to report that Missouri Valley alumni and friends have accepted responsibilities for serving as co-chairmen of some of these district committees.

Dean's List Announced

Academic dean Dr. Douglas Spencer has announced that 130 students, approximately fifteen percent of the full-time enrollment, have made the Dean's Honor List for the 1970 fall semester.

The Dean's Honor List recognizes the academic achievements of those students who have attained a 3.3 average (out of a possible 4.0) the preceding semester while carrying 12 hours or more.

Of the 130 students earning the distinction, 14 made perfect 4.0 averages. The breakdown by class shows the list was comprised of 57 seniors, 27 juniors, 25 sophomores and 21 freshmen.

Valley Players Entertain Audiences

The Valley Players and Alpha Psi Omega presented two highly entertaining and stimulating productions the first semester and have two more scheduled for the second. They opened the season with the witty and spicy contemporary comedy "The Cactus Flower" and followed it with "The Diary of Anne Frank," the Pulitzer Prize-winning story of people's will to live (a scene from "Diary" is pictured above) The next two productions on tap are "The Rainmaker" (February 17-20) and "Lil' Abner" (April 29-May 1).

Recommend A Student!

Missouri Valley College continually seeks new ways of learning about prospective college students. High school guidance offices and professional placement bureaus play a significant role in recruitment but an ever increasing role can be played by alumni, former students and friends of the college. In this and subsequent issues of Viking Views we will be asking for your recommendations of students. If you know of someone that might be interested in Valley or someone Valley should be interested in, simply fill out the attached postage-paid card. Our admissions staff will handle it from there, following-up on your recommendation.

Students Have Works Published

Missouri Valley College is represented by five students in an anthology of short stories and poems produced by the 18 member schools of the Kansas City Regional Council on Higher Education (KCRCHE).

The collection of writings in the publication, entitled Pylons, grew out of a conference last fall. The conference, held at William Jewell College in Liberty, Missouri, brought together faculty members and students for a discussion of creative writing, the teaching of writing, literary publications and related matters.

One of the members of the editorial board of Pylons is Mrs. William Luzader, an MVC English instructor and faculty advisor to the creative writing program.

Pylons is representative of the variety of talent at participating institutions, giving recognition to meritorious work with the hope of further stimulating students engaged in creative endeavors.

The five Missouri Valley students that had works published in Pylons are Barbara Buck, Slater, Missouri; Kathleen Curran, Elmira, New York; Sheila Taaffe, Marshall; David Vickery, Nixon, New Jersey; and Ann Williams, Richmond, Missouri.

Missouri Valley College: What She Stands For

(Editor's note: In these days of widely publicized student unrest and irresponsible acts on the part of a small minority of students, the alumni, former students, parents and friends of Missouri Valley College have a right to know what this college stands for and believes in. In light of this, Missouri Valley's faculty and Board of Trustees formally adopted a "Position Statement" outlining the college's basic beliefs. The beliefs, preceded by an introductory statement, follow below:)

It was the late Peter Marshall who in one of his prayers before the U.S. Senate prayed, "Oh Lord, help us to stand for something, lest we fall for everything." Missouri Valley College, advancing into her 82nd year of service to students, has a stance and a commitment. Under Christian auspices, the college seeks to lay foundations for lives of constructive service to society in teaching, in youth leadership, in community or public life, in the church and in the business and professional world.

Now, more than ever before, this private, four-year liberal arts college emerges clear in its commitment and firm in its dedication to the accomplishment of its mission. Missouri Valley College does not intend to be all things to all people, but neither does she intend to be static and inflexible. It is clear that in education, as in everything else, we cannot do today's job with yesterday's tools and be effective tomorrow.

Appropriate change is essential to progress; at Missouri Valley College there is effective provision for orderly and rational consideration of changes and alternates.

HERE ARE SOME OF THE COLLEGE'S BASIC BELIEFS:

1. MISSOURI VALLEY COLLEGE IS COMMITTED TO THE BELIEF that education is a life-long process and that the college years are a formalized and highly concentrated portion of this educational process. Education includes intellectual, aesthetic, social, moral, physical, vocational and professional development, with the college's academic departments and programs being primary.

2. MISSOURI VALLEY COLLEGE IS COMMITTED TO A BELIEF in following the teachings of Christ. The college strives through the example of faculty and staff to help fashion the values and ideals of students according to the teachings of the Judeo-Christian morality.
3. MISSOURI VALLEY COLLEGE IS COMMITTED TO A BELIEF that the college is established as a center of free and disciplined inquiry. It strives to inculcate the basic liberties of democracy and opposes all actions which infringe upon these liberties.
4. MISSOURI VALLEY COLLEGE IS COMMITTED TO THE BELIEF that violence (armed or otherwise), the forceful occupation or destruction of college property, the overt or covert intimidation of any student, faculty or administrator, the wanton disruption of normal operations of the college, shall be cause for dismissal from Missouri Valley College.
5. MISSOURI VALLEY COLLEGE IS COMMITTED TO THE BELIEF that students must be made aware of the expectations and priorities of the college and must be held accountable for their actions and behavior.
6. MISSOURI VALLEY COLLEGE IS COMMITTED TO THE BELIEF that freedom carries with it responsibility and that voluntary self-discipline is the desired goal toward which students and faculty must work.
7. MISSOURI VALLEY COLLEGE IS COMMITTED TO THE BELIEF that this college exists for all the students currently enrolled and that she also has a responsibility to the alumni, to future generations of students, to faculty and staff and to those who support her with material resources—all of whom shall have an open channel of communication to the decision making processes of the college.
8. MISSOURI VALLEY COLLEGE IS COMMITTED TO THE BELIEF that the college's stated purposes can best be achieved where all parties of the college — students, faculty, staff and trustees — participate and cooperate together.
9. MISSOURI VALLEY COLLEGE IS COMMITTED TO THE BELIEF that while participation of students, faculty and staff in the internal affairs of the college is desirable, final decisions are the responsibility of the President of the College and the Board of Trustees.

Foundation Aids Missouri Colleges

The Goppert Foundation has made an unrestricted grant of stock and bank capital notes amounting to more than $150,000 to the Missouri Colleges Fund, of which Missouri Valley College is a member.

The presentation was made by Clarence H. Goppert, president of the foundation and chairman of the board of the 15 Goppert banks, to Mr. Edward J. Craren, president of the fund. Goppert said the proceeds of the gift were to be used for the operating expenses of the 16 Missouri Colleges Fund members.

In commenting on the contribution, Craren stated that through judicious sales of the stock and capital notes and realized interest, the gift could amount to a total of almost $230,000 over the next 10 years.

The Missouri Colleges Fund was chartered in 1952 as a non-profit, tax-exempt corporation with the stated purpose of making a united approach to business and industry for operating funds for the 16 member colleges. Money invested in the MCF is divided equally among the member colleges unless otherwise specified by the contributor.

Development Program Is Making Progress

Organizational plans for Missouri Valley's Decade of Development Program are moving along with the announced appointments of two more area chairmen.

Dr. Douglas Kelling '30, a board of trustee member and past president of the alumni association has been named coordinator of the Kansas City area campaign while Leo G. Peck, another college trustee, is heading up the St. Louis area campaign.

Previously, it was announced that Dr. H. Roe Bartle, former MVC president and trustee emeritus, was named national chairman and that W. Catron Gordon '26 and Leonard S. Van Dyke, both college trustees, were named to head the Marshall and Saline County drive.

Already making a contribution on behalf of the local community was the Marshall Philharmonic Orchestra. In speaking for the orchestra members, its sponsors and subscribers, Mr. Gordon, orchestra general manager, said the contribution is "a firm indication of our recognition of the importance of this fine institution to the community and to the mutual cultural interest we share." The money given to the college came from proceeds of the orchestra's first performance and the sale of season tickets.

Valley has also received two checks from the Sears Foundation, one an unrestricted grant to be used as the college deems necessary and the other to make library acquisitions. Missouri Valley was one of 29 Missouri colleges and universities to receive a grant from the Sears Foundation which, this year, will distribute $2 million to more than 975 private, accredited, two and four-year institutions.

Campus Organizations Help Needy Children

Various campus organizations were quite active in making this past Christmas one to remember for underprivileged children in the Marshall and Saline County area.

—The men of Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity held a Christmas party at the Blosser Home for Crippled Children, bringing a present for each child. The Alpha Sigs also joined with the girls of Delta Zeta in giving a program to the patients of the Marshall State School and Hospital.

—Campbell Hall residents held a Christmas party for several children from the State School. The men decorated the dorm lobby and provided refreshments and gifts.

—The Sigma Nu fraternity, along with the Marshall Jaycees, sponsored a project appropriately labeled "Operation Santa Claus," accumulating toys for needy children. The toys, coming through direct gifts or purchased with money raised through several projects, were distributed to 350 youngsters by the Saline County Welfare Office.

It's heartening to know that with finals upon them and Christmas vacation not far off, Valley students were able to take the time to help those less fortunate than others.

Hall of Fame Inducts Four

During halftime ceremonies at the football game between Missouri Valley and William Jewell, Valley inducted four members into its Athletic Hall of Fame. The Hall of Fame was started a year ago with the induction of Amos Durrett '24, Mike Haggard '30 and Tom McCutcheon '24. This year, Alva Baker '49, Warren Harris '43, Homer "Red" Leech '37 and Cecil Patterson '30 were so honored.

Baker was a starting halfback on four MCAU Conference championship teams and is now teaching physical education and drivers' training at Northeast High School in Kansas City. Harris lettered in football, basketball and track and played on the undefeated football team of 1942, leading the nation in scoring. He is now an assistant coach on the Princeton University staff. "Red" Leech, also a three-sport letterman, played on three MCAU Conference championship football teams and was on the first published list of Associated Press Little All-Americans. He no longer coaches, but serves Carrollton High School as Coordinator. Patterson was another of Valley's three-sport lettermen and played on the undefeated championship football teams of 1927 and 1929. He is now head coach at Wentworth Military Academy in Lexington, Missouri.

The presentations of plaques to these former Viking greats were made by Dr. Volney C. Ashford, Athletic Director; Dr. George C. Brock, Director of Student Financial Aid; and Mike Haggard, Alumni Association President. All were on hand for the ceremony except Harris.

Honors Accorded Football Players

Missouri Valley College dominated the 1970 MCAU All-Conference and All District 16 football teams, placing eight players on each squad. The Vikings had their best season since 1961 finishing with an 8-2 record enroute to the MCAU Conference championship.

Named to both the All-Conference and All-District teams for the second year in a row were senior defensive nose guard Kile Guthrey, Miami, Missouri, and sophomore safety Phil Willard, Chillicothe, Missouri. Junior center John Morris, Macon, Missouri, is a repeat performer on the All-Conference team.

Moving up from the second team a year ago to this year's first team on both squads are sophomore halfback Tony Chandler, Kansas City, Missouri; senior defensive tackle Charles Guthrey, Miami, Missouri; senior tackle Sam Kornhauser, Brooklyn, New York; and junior split end Dan Kratzer, Lathrop, Missouri.

Making both the conference and district teams for the first time is sophomore defensive end Larry Stowers, Kansas City, Missouri, while sophomore offensive guard Marty Riggs, Grandview, Missouri was a first team selection on the district team.

Kratzer, the top vote-getter on the district team, and Kile Guthrey both received honorable mention on the NAIA All-America team.

The Vikings' placed five players on the conference's second team and six received honorable mention. The district team saw one Viking receive special mention and four others honorable mention.

Viking players weren't the only ones receiving honors as head coach Ken Gibler, in his third year at the helm, was named Coach-of-the-Year in District 16.

Football Standouts Receive Awards

A Message

your

Alumni President

E. M. "MIKE" HAGGARD '30

As the month of January is nearing an end and we can see the days getting a little longer, it's time to begin thinking about returning to your Alma Mater for a few class reunions.

Alumni Day has been scheduled for Saturday, May 1. All classes ending with the number 1 (1901, 1911, 1921, 1931, 1941, 1951, 1961) will be holding their class reunions. For the 1921 class, it will be their golden anniversary while the 1946 class will hold its silver anniversary reunion.

Although your class may not be scheduled for a reunion this year it might be very enjoyable to get back and see your friends, who I am sure you haven't seen for a long time. You might enjoy just seeing the MVC of the 1970's. You could be surprised to find a campus of friendly and sincere students and a faculty dedicated to their job of guiding those students.

Alumni Day, May 1, could be a day to long remember. Check your calendar today and plan to return. Mr. Clay Marsh, our director, is planning a lot of activity — you remember what a homecoming we had last fall. Alumni Day will be bigger and better.

In closing I would like to encourage every alumnus to talk about Missouri Valley College to a high school senior. You can become the greatest publicity agent the college ever had.

Hope to see you Saturday, May 1.

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. William H. Bryan, fs 41; (the former Doris Danuser) of Marshall, Mo. died Dec. 2, 1970 in Marshall, Mo.
Mr. Tim Keirn, fs 07 (Acad.), of Marshall, Mo. died Dec. 16, 1970 in Marshall, Mo.
Mrs. James Logan Buntin, Sr., fs 03 (Acad.), (the former Myrl Sprigg) of Napton, Mo. died Jan. 19, 1971 in Marshall, Mo.
Mrs. W. B. Hupp, Sr., fs 05 (Acad.), (the former Doshia Rector) of Marshall, Mo. died Jan. 21, 1971 in Marshall, Mo.

Montana Math Council To Honor Valley Grad

This April, the Montana Council of Teachers of Mathematics will honor Dr. Adrien L. Hess, a 1930 Missouri Valley graduate, by naming their annual convention in his behalf.

While at Valley, Dr. Hess lettered in football, basketball and baseball. He was graduated magna cum laude after which he attended Central Missouri State College for a year. During the next 14 years he taught math and science in Montana high schools while at the same time earning his masters degree from the University of Montana.

He has been with Montana State University since 1945, moving up through the ranks from instructor to professor, the position he now holds. Along the way he found time to earn his Ph.D from the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Hess' activities have been wide and varied. He has served on numerous committees, held many offices, and been listed in a number of different publications recognizing educational and community leaders. One of the latest of those listings was in the 1970 edition of "Creative and Successful Personalities of the World."

Besides authoring a Mathematics Project Handbook, he has contributed articles to The Arithmetic Teacher, The Mathematics Teacher, Mathematics Magazine, American Mathematical Monthly and School Science and Mathematics.

The letter informing Dr. Hess of the honor accorded him said, in part, "... Your dedication to the cause of mathematics education has been an inspiration to many, many teachers and has enabled the students of Montana schools to receive training in mathematics which must rank among the first in the nation. . ."

Missouri Valley is proud of the esteem which Dr. Hess' accomplishments reflect upon both the institution and his contributions to his professional field.

and Miss Donna Sue MacDowell of Pacific Palisades, Ca. were married Jan. 2, 1971 in Pacific Palisades, Ca.

Alumni Notes

The response to the questionnaire has exceeded the expectations of the alumni office and we offer our sincere thanks to all who returned them.

As stated on the questionnaire, we are not publishing any of the information except that which is necessary for the directory. Therefore, we are asking that you drop a note to the alumni office notifying us of any job changes, promotions, honors, marriages, births or deaths so we may keep your friends and fellow alumni informed. In this manner, we will publish only the information you wish to have appear in Viking Views.
